It has often been said that for any person to be an effective manager and leader of others, they must first be an effective manager and leader of self.

Southpac’s Advanced Management & Leadership Course is designed for managers and leaders from all industries – not just aviation – to equip those with influence over others to lead in an effective and inspiring way.

Facilitated by our experienced industry trainers, this engaging and insightful 5-Day course examines and develops the key principles of leadership and management, including practical application within real world situations.

Participants will develop new leadership skills as well as gaining a deeper insight into their own style of leadership.
